FIRM PROFILE

As a law firm focused exclusively in the area of Information Law, which involves legal counsel relating to the creation, receipt, storage, retrieval, production and destruction of documents and electronic information, Redgrave LLP is at the forefront of addressing the ever-evolving challenges associated with the management of documents and electronically stored information.

Unlike other law and consulting firms, we have dedicated legal and technical professionals, led by industry thought-leader Jonathan Redgrave. And, because our practice focuses squarely on electronic discovery and records and information management, we are able to deliver sound strategic advice, counsel and representation to those facing Information Law issues. Our breadth of experience and services also allows us to bring a holistic view of the information lifecycle to issues to help clients maximize efficiencies, leverage technologies and avoid unintended consequences.

Redgrave LLP was founded on three core ideals:

- A desire to provide clients with practical legal advice and counsel focused exclusively in the area of Information Law;
- A confidence in the value clients could gain when innovative processes, strategies and technologies were applied to sound and defensible legal representation; and
- A commitment to deliver the highest quality of services in the area of Information Law, by attracting, hiring and cultivating the most experienced attorneys and analysts in the Information Law space.

Since Redgrave LLP was founded in July of 2010, the firm has quickly earned its reputation as the go-to firm for eDiscovery and Information Law matters. Today the firm employs a team of nearly 20 lawyers and other professionals and serves Fortune 500 companies and AmLaw 100 firms across the United States and abroad.
